Dear John:

Here is the copy of the "confidential" and "classified" material I promised to send you.

In the two years that the large screening program under contract to the Cancer Chemotherapy National Service Center has been in effect, 44,952 materials have been submitted by industry, educational institutions, and research organizations. These materials are screened through 3 mouse tumor systems: Sarcoma 180, Carcinoma 755, and Leukemia L1210.

Screening results are now available on these 44,952 materials, 269 of which are of sufficient interest for further study. From this additional screening we expect that about 20 compounds will be made available for clinical study.

The attached tabulations list 126 compounds presently of interest to the Cancer Chemotherapy National Service Center, as well as 113 filtrates or "beers". Forty-three compounds are currently in clinical trial, with 7 more to go into trial shortly.

Warmest wishes always,

Yours,

Mary L.
